When you make your will put hothing into it but tenderness, kindness and consideration. It is to be read after your funeral, and is a message from the dead. All the hate in our composition should be interred with our bones; let love alone live. Bronze compliments, bossed deep on memorial tablets, never yet thrilled human hearts like a loving word in a will.

Not only does beauty fade, but it leaves a record upon the countenance

Not only does beauty rade, but it leaves a record upon the countenance as to what became of it.

Everlasting life will be yours if you deserve it—your present belief or disbellef does not affect the issue. But make sure of this, if you are to be a great soul in heaven you have got to begin to be a great soul here.

great soul in nearest you begin to be a great soul here.

The greatest mistake you can make in life is to be continually fearing you will make one. To have many friends, and then the nave many triends, and then when calumny lowers, or calamity threatens, to have these friends auddenly desert you—what happier fate!

The more one knows the more one simplifies.

The most serious foreign complication this country has to fear under the new order of things is a case of artistic jealousy on the part of Wilhelm II.
Everything is waiting and watching you to see what signal you hoist from within. You attract that which you desire to attract desire to attract.
Poor people usually mind other peo-ple's business, and, therefore, have no business of their own.

the fusion and Republican tickets were the guests at a dinner given by the West Side Republican club, 2207 Broadway. It was a jubilee affair and the speeches were all in reference to the victory. One of the principal speakers was John S. Wise of Virginia. Mr. Wise evoked much cheering and laughter by offering this toast to Tammany: "To Tammany hall and Dick Croker, its pilot! May they be put to, sea in an onen boat without a rudder or complete the provide as comfortable means of travel as can be offered—sleepers excepted. As an economical measure they are unsurpassed. They are hauled on fast trains, and are in charge of experienced and polite porters.

All essentials for the tollet—towels, soap, its pilot! May they be put to sea in an open boat without a rudder or compass. May that boat be swallowed by a shark and that shark by a whale in the devil's belly in the southwest corner of hades, with the door locked and the key lost, and a northwest wind blowing the ashen in his eyes for ever and ever."

A GIFTED MANIAC.

Kraus, the Sculptor, Abandons His Masterpiece For Madhouse.

(Philadelphia North Americana) Struggling to complete the master work of his life, Sculptor Adolph Rob-ert Krans was driven mad by the cares of poverty. He is now an inmate of the state asylum in Danvers.

man of genlus; She smiled on him at first, and hi soul, expanding under the kindly warmth, produced works of the high-est art. Many of his fairest dreams took snape and, bodied forth in the solid marble, became an inspiration to his fellows and a lasting ornament to the city of his adoption.

Until the very day when the curtain fell upon the tragedy there had opened before him like a celestial vision the hope of a complete realization of his ambitton—a place among the immortais ambition—a place among the immortals in the House Beautiful of Art.

On the other hand homed the menacing specters of poverty despair, starvation and death and standing thus at the puring of the ways, he saw the cup of success dashed from his very lips. It was then he became a midway. a madman work that had been for years his fondest dream, the work that he believed would have made him immertal—a gigantic figure of "Beishazzar Seeing the Writing on the Wall."

Kraus was born in Zoulenroda, Germany, in 1850. At the age of 14 he began work as a stone and wood carver. He improved rapidly, opened a studie, and at the age of 23 had enough money to go to Rome, where he studied with Emilio Wolf. After one year in Rome he took the first prize in the Royal Institute of Fine Arts, established a short stitute of Fine Arts, established a short time before by the Italian government Because of the merit of his work, "The Puritan," shown at that time, he was awarded a small pension by the Prus-sian government by order of Emperor William william.

In 1876 he went to Germany and opened a school of architecture, but this did not succeed, and he removed to London. There in 1880 he married Miss Annie Cullinaore, and in the following year came to America, settling in Philadelphia. Later he lived in New York and some years ago came to Boston.

York and some years ago came to Boston.

Among the notable sculptures he has made since coming to this country is the Crispus Attucks monument on Hoston Common, erected to the memory of the first man that died in the struggle for American liberty. Attucks was a negro and was shot in front of the state house in this city in what is known as the Boston Massacre.

In the state house on Beacon Hill is a marble bust of Governor Oliver Ames, which Mr. Kraus made by direction of the state. In the Mechanics building is a bust of Paul Revere pronounced one of the finest sculptures in the country. Another bust that has not been seen by the public is that of ex-Mayor Lincoln, also a notable work.

In Forest Hills cemetery are several of his best conceptions, among them being the Jacob Wirth monument. He has made a head of Christ that is a marvel of beauty and strength.
